

History & Honour Roll –

Australian Women’s Interstate Teams Matches

History

The first annual intercolonial match saw Victoria (players from Geelong and Royal Melbourne Golf Clubs) play Royal Sydney (members). It was played in Sydney in 1897 and was won by Victoria.

Interstate matches continued from 1906 to 1939 and from 1947.

In 1933, following her death, the series became the Gladys Hay Memorial Cup in honour of Miss Hay (to perpetuate her great contribution to the game both as an administrator (Foundation Member of the ALGU and Council Member 1921-23) and player (Australian Champion 1922)).

Each team consists of six players, with four players taking part in the two foursomes, and five players involved in the singles.

In 2011 the foursomes matches were removed which each team contesting singles matches only. At the conclusion of the five singles rounds, teams one and two play each other in a final to determine the winner.

From 2007, the Women’s, Men’s and Colts Interstate Teams Matches were played concurrently in the same city.

Gladys Hay

Gladys Hay was the winner of the last Victorian Championship before World War 1 (1914) and the first after it (1920 and 1921). It is considered that the war detracted from Gladys gaining an even more impressive record. She was very committed to the establishment of associate golf at her own club, Metropolitan in Melbourne, and was a prominent administrator who became widely recognised as an authority on the Rules of the game.
